

WHALE SHARKS OF ISLA MUJERES

Isla Mujeres

Francisco Hernandez de Córdoba arrived on the island he would name Isla Mujeres (“Island of the Women”) in 1517. He chose this name after the many images and idols of women erected by the Maya as offerings to the goddess Ixchel, a deity concerned with fertility, love and the moon. It was a place where the Maya prayed for the prosperity of their land, for the health of their unborn children, and for alleviation of their illnesses.

Isla Mujeres is located eight miles off the coast of Cancun, Mexico, and one hour door-to-door from Cancun International Airport. With clear turquoise waters, white sand beaches, and almost perfect year-round weather, the island is a haven for beach and water sport enthusiasts alike. Approximately five miles long and less than a half-mile wide, the island is also ideal for exploration via golf cart, moped or bicycle. The island’s center, a vibrant fishing village with many shops and restaurants, is a short walk from the hotel. Due to its close proximity to Cancun and Riviera Maya, Isla Mujeres is also a wonderful starting point for discovering the Yucatan and its many archaeological sites.

Whale Sharks

Whale Sharks (Rhincodon typus) are harmless sharks, not whales. They are the largest fish in the ocean, reportedly reaching over 50' (15 m) in length and over 27,000 lb (12,500 kg) in weight. The largest known aggregation of these massive sharks occurs yearly near Isla Mujeres and the east coast of the Yucatan Peninsula, with up to 420 whale sharks observed in a single aerial survey.

Whale sharks are filter feeders, scooping plankton and other tiny organisms from the water. Although they have colossal mouths and thousands of tiny teeth (like velcro!), whale sharks are docile fish and it is entirely safe to snorkel alongside them while they feed. Each whale shark encounter allows for two people to enter the water at a time, alongside a guide. While watching sharks you may also see large manta rays, dolphins, and turtles, all of which are abundant here during the summer months.

All rooms and suites feature: air conditioning, television with international channels, ceiling fan, mini refrigerator, safe deposit box, alarm, tile bathrooms with shower, coffee maker, beach towels, maid services, front desk area wi-fi connection, use of beach, pool and general areas.

What To Bring

Space is always limited when traveling abroad, so please pack your gear in soft bags for easy stowage. Clothing should be lightweight, comfortable sportswear. Include a few warmer items for those cool days, synthetic quick dry clothing for days on the boat, sandals or soft-soled shoes, high SPF reef-safe sunscreen, a wide brimmed hat, sun glasses, and a wind breaker or jacket. Also bring comfortable clothing for evenings out on the town and exploring the island. Your snorkeling gear should consist of a mask, snorkel, pair of full foot fins and a lightweight wetsuit. If you wear a minimum 3mm full wetsuit and have your "PADI Skin Diver" Certificate, regulations currently allow you to be exempt from wearing the required flotation vest.

Climate and Weather

The average temperature in June and July on Isla Mujeres is around 80 degrees, with moderate to high humidity. Evenings can be quite a bit cooler, with a breeze. The summer months can bring precipitation but the storms generally pass by quickly. The early part of official hurricane season (June through November) coincides with whale shark season, though September and October are the months when tropical storms and hurricanes are most likely. Nevertheless, it is always a good idea to purchase travel insurance.

Guide and Staff gratuities will be at the discretion of each guest and are not included. However, gratuities for the boat crew are included. We prefer that guests reward the guides and staff based on their performance. It is customary to tip 10% - 15% of the package price.
